

LAND, SEA AND AIR FORCES ARE ENGAGED IN VIOLENT ENCOUNTER ALONG THE COAST OF BELGIUM

FRENCH WARSHIPS TAKE POSITION BESIDE ENGLISH MONITORS NOW BOMBARDING GERMAN LAND FORCES.

CONFLICTING REPORTS

German Line Said to Have Been Cut Forcing A Retirement in Region Near Ostend and Bruges—Reinforcements Rushed.

London, Oct. 23.—Vessels from the French navy have crept around the coast and today standing by the British monitors which are hurling shells landward toward Ostend and Nieuport, on the Belgian coast, in continuation of the fierce battle for possession of the North Sea and channel ports.

For the first time since war began air crafts and warships are adding simultaneously in the movement of land forces. Thus the struggle is being waged in the air, on the sea, and on the land at the same time.

The Germans are hurrying forward fresh troops and heavy guns, the latter to make reply to the damaging fire from the ships, and although they have been pushed back at certain points they appear to be holding their line between the sea and La Bassée without, however, making noteworthy progress.

Gigantic Artillery Duel.

The fighting so far as Belgium is concerned has now resolved itself into a gigantic artillery duel in which it is claimed that the allies by reason of their long ranged guns have had the advantage. The muddy roads and the network of canals doubtless have hindered the invaders from getting their line between the sea and La Bassée without, however, making noteworthy progress.

It is said that up to the present time the British losses have been very heavy, although both sides must have suffered heavily on land.

The Germans claim to have put a British torpedo boat out of action.

Albert, king of Belgium, who since his retirement from Ostend has been working from various points in northern France, appears to be actually at the scene of the fighting. This information is on the authority of the British admiralty.

Report German Line Cut.

That the German line south of Ostend has been cut and a retirement has set in, figures among a number of unconfirmed news reports this morning. On the other hand, another correspondent of the Times says that the Germans have not left Bruges, and that they are still in great force in the neighborhood of Ostend. What withdrawal of troops there has been made toward Bruges, this correspondent adds, is only a precautionary measure.

Few Englishmen will admit that they really expect a visit from Zeppelin airships, but the insurance companies are doing a large business not only on property but against personal injuries from bombs.

Even Westminster Abbey has been insured.

German Loss at Warsaw.

The reported German defeat before Warsaw still dominates the news from the eastern field.

There came again today what is becoming a time worn report, that the Russians have taken Przemyśl. A dispatch from the Central News from Petrograd was to the effect that this is persistent, but not confirmed. In the reported German rout at Warsaw the British press professes to see the turning point along the Vistula. While the Germans apparently are holding their positions along this river between Plica and Sandomir, it is claimed that the time is nearing for Russia to carry the war into Germany.

On French Right Wing.

A dispatch from Paris to Reuters Telegram Company says that according to trustworthy accounts received at the French capital this morning the fresh troops brought up by the Germans have enabled them to deliver attacks with increased vigor on the French right wing, where the battle has been a ding-dong character with alternate gains and losses.

Verne's Dreams Realized.

Paris, Oct. 23.—The struggle on the lengthened line extending into Belgium now called the battle of Planques, gave rise to an engagement along the coast near the hump of Jules Verne. Aircraft and submarines participated in this engagement. Thus were the dreams of the great French romancer realized in the shadow of his birthplace.

The British monitors off shore did heavy damage to the German trenches. Among those reported killed were General Von Tripp and his staff, while the allies' aircraft, cleverly directed the aim of the marine guns, the German submarine lying in wait to attack the monitors, but without result, because the latter were so far in shore.

Allies' Right Gains.

The gains made by the allies on the road to Metz it is believed will draw the attention of the Germans to a quarter where they are menaced not only from the direction of Verdun but the renewed successes of the French on the eastern slope of the Vosges.

The news from Bordeaux today indicates that parliament is not to be called to meet there, but in Paris. The employees of both the chamber and senate have been notified that they may return to Paris at the end of this month.

French Prepare Recruits.

The French continue the preparation of prospective recruits to fill the ranks in the army. Baron Pierre De Courbentin, president of the French Olympic games committee, it has been announced, has been charged by the government to care for physical training of young men from fifteen to nineteen with a view to their entry into the service.

The military authorities are more and more watchful of stragglers. Every man arriving at the Paris terminus of the railway is required to show papers on arrival, and if they are not in order, arrests are made.

Antwerp Garrison Depleted.

London, Oct. 23.—A dispatch from Rotterdam to the Star says:

"The movement of German troops westward from Antwerp has left only a few hundred in the town. The last batch left yesterday morning, and most of the great forts are now without garrisons. The German wounded from the front are being quartered at the zoo.

"A traveler who has just left the city says that someone restored to the town hall the Belgian flag, and the Germans did not bother to take it down. The whole Belgian coast is now deserted by the population, the military being in sole possession. At Ostend over 100 Belgian locomotives have been collected.

Continue Violent Attack.

The official announcement given out at the war office this afternoon says: "On our left wing the very considerable German forces whose presence was reported yesterday have continued a very violent attack in the entire region between the sea and the canal of La Bassée.

"Generally speaking, the situation of the allied forces has been maintained. If the allies have had to yield at certain points, they have advanced at others.

"The enemy also evidenced very great activity in the region of Arras on the river Somme. To the north and south of this stream we have progressed, particularly in the region of Rosieres.

"In Flanders, in the region of Verdun, and in the region of Pont-a-Mousson, we have had some partial successes. On the rest of the front there is nothing to report.

"To sum up: The enemy appears to be undertaking along the major part of the front and particularly between the North Sea and the Oise a new effort, making use of corps made up of new organizations. These are composed of men recently drilled. Some of them very young, and others of middle age, and have staffs drawn from various parts of the army.

"Russia: To the south of the Plica the Germans still hold the Vistula river with the exception of the line from Ivangorod to Kozlidze. This they have abandoned, pursued by the Russians.

"All the efforts made by the Austrians to cross the river San to the north of Jareau have been repulsed, and the Russians are undertaking the offensive in this region."

Berlin Report Optimistic.

Berlin, Oct. 23.—An official announcement from German army headquarters dated Oct. 23 says:

"On the Yser canal yesterday we gained successes.

"To the south of Dixmude our troops advanced.

"To the west of Lille our attacks were successful. We took possession of several villages.

"On the rest of the western frontier it is generally quiet.

"In the eastern theatre of war the Russian attacks near West Augustow have been repulsed. We captured several machine guns.

"Southwest of Warsaw we have won a definite victory.

Claim Victories.

Berlin, wireless, Oct. 23.—According to official announcement made in Vienna, Czernowitz, capital of the crown land of Bukovina, which has been in the possession of the Russians since early in the war, has been retaken by the Austrians. They have captured also two Russian field fortifications located one behind the other to the southeast of Sambor. To the north-west of Sambor Austrian troops are proceeding in the direction of Strassol. During the recent engagements Austrian troops have taken 3,400 Russian prisoners, among whom were twenty-five officers. They have captured also fifteen machine guns.

ASK INVESTIGATION OF WOMEN'S WAGES

Milwaukee Petitioners to Industrial Commission Avert That Living Wages Are Not Being Paid.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., October 23.—If the industrial commission, in acting upon the petition of well known Milwaukeeans for the fixing of a minimum wage in several important industries, decides to broaden the scope of the determination, several thousand women employees may be affected. The petition sets forth that the petitioners believe that living wages are not paid to many women and minors in the occupations of several thousand women employees in the following industries, knit goods factories, hosiery factories, department stores and mercantile establishments. In ordering that a public meeting be held on the petition in Milwaukee, the commission holds that there is reasonable cause to believe that wages paid to females and minors in Milwaukee in the occupations set forth in said petition, as well as in other occupations, are not a living wage. While the commission does not set forth specifically that other industries will be included, it does not say that they will not.

The importance of any broadening of the investigation is shown in the 1910 census statistics for Milwaukee. In that year, the census reported 38,435 female workers in Milwaukee. This total included 3,215 in professional service and 11,016 in domestic and personal service. This leaves a total of 25,194 women employees.

The census shows the following information regarding occupations which might be affected by a minimum wage determination of broad scope: Textile industries, 1,533 women employed; millinery, 1,264; cigar factories, 252; chemical factories, 67; hat factories, 69; suit, cloak and overcoat factories, 149; enamel ware factories, 118; printing and publishing, 204; saw and mill factories, 2,016; telephone operators, 524; clerks exclusive of clerks in stores, 861. In several of these industries many of the women are paid more than any amount that would be named as a minimum wage.

GERMAN LANDSTRUM MAY NOT BE CALLED

Calling of First Body of Reserves is Unnecessary, According to Berlin Army Official.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Oct. 23.—The Pall Mall Gazette says that the Duke of Rocksbury, captain of the Scottish Guards, was wounded while on service in France. His wounds, however, are not dangerous.

The Duke of Rocksbury is well known in the United States as a special agent in New York where in 1903 he married Miss May Colet. The duke have one son, the heir to the dukedom, who was born Sept. 5, 1913.

MRS. CARMAN FACED CROSS EXAMINATION WITH A FIRM STORY

Household Confirms Alleged Murderer's Testimony, While Negro Maid and Frank Farrell Oppose It.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Minneapolis, N. Y., Oct. 23.—Mrs. Florence Conklin Carman, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, passed through the bitter ordeal of cross examination today. Her story denying all participation in the crime was unchanged.

When she had concluded, members of her household followed her to the stand and swore that what she had testified to was true.

Mrs. Sarah Conklin, Mrs. Ida Powell, Elizabeth Carman—mother, sister and daughter, one by one affirmed her story that she was in bed when the murder was committed. She testified that she saw the murderer, a negro man, enter the room, and that she saw him take the victim to the waiting room, leaving for a minute or two against the mantelpiece and then returned to her room. Ten minutes later she testified that the murderer went down the stairs behind her mother, stayed there but a moment, returned and within a minute or two went into her mother's room.

"My mother was there," she said. "Against the testimony of the Carman household the state has the evidence of Celia Coleman, negro maid in Mrs. Carman's home, and Frank Farrell, former railroad engineer.

Mrs. Carman testified that she went out of the kitchen a short time before the shot was fired, reappeared a few seconds after it was fired and produced a revolver from the folds of her kimono, and said: "I shot him."

Farrell has testified that he saw a woman dressed as Mrs. Carman was dressed, flee from the window into the house after the shot.

Mrs. Carman faced her ordeal with unperturbed composure. She parted in a smile once as the district attorney thrust home intimate questions as to the jealousy that has stirred her heart concerning her husband's relations with women. She seemed to lose her splendid self control, and to falter, but smilingly well administered, soon revived her. She broke down after it was all over and wept. The reaction came when her mother, who sat beside her, said: "What caused Mrs. Carman's suspicion she would not say. 'A woman did not cause it—just rumors,' said the witness.

"No, just rumors asking him about his girls. Somebody told me he was a devil with the girls."

She could not recall who told her this or where when she was a girl. She was bidding her named many friends of Dr. Carman, but could not name one of them as having said, "How are all your girls?"

"Somebody was asking him that question at the time," she said. "They were joking I thought at first, but after a while I thought there may be some truth in what they said. They would say to me, 'the doctor is some devil.'"

"Did you have an inclination to hear what the doctor had to say to his women patients?"

"In a way, yes, to some of his patients."

"Did you ask him where he was when he was out all night?"

"Yes, and he told me."

"Did you believe him?"

"Yes, sometimes."

"Your suspicions increase with time?"

"They increased right up to the time of the murder. They have all been dispelled now."

"How long have you been in that frame of mind?"

"Ever since the terrible tragedy. What I heard, or rather what I didn't hear, on the telephone instrument, reassured me."

For several minutes Mrs. Carman sought to evade a direct answer to the district attorney's questions as to whether she thought her husband was truthful. Finally she said: "I don't know. She explained she had no real reason to doubt him."

PORTUGUESE TROOPS QUELL REBELLION

Monarchists Attempt to Incite Uprising in Portugal But Are Crushed by Soldiers.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Lisbon, Oct. 23.—The monarchists of Portugal made a desperate attempt to stir up a rebellion against the republic. There were outbreaks at various places, especially in the northern part of Portugal, which for a time was cut off from telegraphic communication with Lisbon.

Sharp conflicts took place at the Taifa, between 100 civilians and republican troops. The civilians were led by a priest, who was killed. The troops were victorious.

An insurgent band numbering 200 men, was pursued to the mountains. Portions of the railroad between Santarem and Mofra were torn up and trains were derailed. A colonel and two sergeants were arrested at Santarem and many monarchists taken into custody in Lisbon.

PROTEST OVER BRITISH RULE PROHIBITING SHORT MEN FROM JOINING TROOPS.

(Correspondence of The A. P.)

Paris, Oct. 23.—The stupendous operations of the millions of men fighting in Belgium and northern France have overshadowed the struggle for the possession of Southern Alsace, which was the first really important development of the war. Official communications have largely overlooked this theater of operations, and most people are unaware that the struggle has continued and that the region between Altkirch and Cernay has several reverses of the fortunes of war.

The town of Thann, important because of commanding the valley of Wesseling has been taken and retaken several times. Mulhausen, twice taken and occupied by the French, was at last accounts again in the hands of the Germans, as a result of the withdrawal of General Pauls army to reinforce the armies of the north.

Despatches from Basle state that the German change of fortune has been particularly trying to the population. Conspicuous native Alsacians were punished after the first German re-occupation for alleged services rendered to the French. While after the second French occupation it was the turn of native German citizens to suffer for giving information to the Germans.

Thann, the German mayor and postmaster were shot after the second French occupation for spying in favor of the Germans. Moreover, in retaliation for the action of the French in taking away with them all the men of age to bear arms from the villages occupied by the Germans called out every man in Alsace between the ages of 17 and 45. In consequence there is much distress in many villages where there are only old men, women and children left.

This unhappy land, serving as a buffer between the belligerent countries is far from seeing the end of its trials. The battles that have followed each other almost daily since September 13th are only the prelude to bigger and more destructive engagements. The war has been a low the decisive result of the battle of the Alsace.

SETTLE UP ESTATE OF HARRIET HORNE

After Two Years of Litigation Settlement is Reached When Heirs Withdraw Objections.

After two years of litigation in the probate and county courts the estate of the late Harriet Horne has finally been settled following the decision of the heirs to make no further objections to the disposition of the property as determined upon by the court. The settlement was reached after two years of litigation in the probate and county courts.

Harriet Horne was the wife of the late Dr. William Horne. She died at the Mercy Hospital, in the city of Chicago, Oct. 10, 1912. She bequeathed her property to her niece, Miss Rosa Kizer of Edgerton, this county, estate amounting to approximately $2,700, all in money. The will was admitted to probate, Jas. A. Fathers being the executor and Thomas S. Nolan his attorney.

Afterward Dr. William Horne, who was then living, acting by Edward H. Ryan and H. L. Maxfield, his attorneys, took an appeal from the judgment of the county court admitting the will to probate. He claimed that the will was invalid, claiming that when the instrument was executed Mrs. Horne was unduly influenced and incompetent. After a hotly contested trial the circuit court affirmed the decision of the county court.

Later, Dr. Horne died, testate, and his son, Dr. Horne, Jr., was made executor of his will. He took a new will to the county court, backed up by a number of affidavits, for the citation of the executor of the will of Harriet Horne, deceased, to show cause why he should not pay to the estate of William Horne, deceased, the sum of $532.15 and interest. It was claimed in the petition and the affidavits, that this amount, which was inventoried as a part of her estate, belonged to her husband, as she had appropriated it or deposited it in a bank in his name. This contention and these affidavits were answered by affidavits on the part of the executor of the will of Harriet Horne, deceased, denying the contention that the money was appropriated by her husband. An appeal from the decision of the county court was then taken by the executor of the will of William Horne, deceased, to the circuit court, where the matter was brought on for trial. The circuit court on the trial affirmed the decision of the county court, the executor of the will of Harriet Horne, deceased, formally notified not to pay over that part of the property in his hands, claimed by the estate of William Horne, deceased, as an inheritance in equity was about to be instituted. No action was begun, however, and after a time the heirs, including Dr. William Horne and Margaret Horne of Whitewater, came into the case and made no further objection to the settlement of the estate of Harriet Horne, deceased. They so notified the executor, and the estate was then settled as soon as practicable.

CONGRESS FAILED TO ADJOURN TODAY

Another Session Will Be Held Saturday—Cotton Bill Big Issue.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Oct. 23.—All efforts to adjourn congress and to die again today, and the senate by adjourning over to noon tomorrow postponed the end of the session at least another day.

Talk of President Wilson exercising his constitutional privilege and adjourning congress, was general in official circles, but nothing materialized. Senate leaders hoped some arrangement could be made to put the bank law amendment and the cotton house bill for which cotton state members were filibustering, without the necessary quorum. In the house the filibustering continued being quelled only until 1:45 o'clock when adjournment was taken to noon tomorrow.

HOUSTON WOMEN START CAMPAIGN FOR THRIFT

Houston, Tex., Oct. 23.—Led by Mrs. Henry B. Fall, president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, the housewives of Houston have inaugurated a thrift campaign. The high cost of living is to be reduced. The women are going to lower prices, not by boycotting merchants nor by petitioning the legislature, but by suggestions made at the great mass meeting at which the campaign was launched. Among the suggestions were the following:

"Know the woman's business to buy what goes into the home. She should know her business. Too many women trust the buying to their servants. These servants are usually ignorant and do not know what they have in their pantry. Housewives should do their own marketing. They should carry their bundles home. Housewives pay delivery charges without realizing it. Keep a good stock and dry measure in the house to make sure the merchant has not cheated. Bring the producer and consumer together through the medium of the war market. Make cheaper food possible in the future by refusing to buy but veal now. Make it possible for middlemen to make four or five times as much as the producer. Don't encourage the use of fancy labels. They cost money."

Reports from Oconto this morning say that Mr. Blaine recovered and left for Oconto Falls to continue the campaign.

CANAL TRAFFIC INCREASES DESPITE EUROPEAN STRIFE

(Correspondence of The A. P.)

Panama, Oct. 23.—Notwithstanding that the war has largely curtailed shipping, the Canal traffic for the first six weeks was greater, says Col. Goethals, than had been expected, and indicates that within a year the tolls may be sufficient to pay all operating expenses.

The canal has thus far earned $369,706. Between August 15 and October 1, eighty-one self-propelled vessels made use of it. Most of these were ships of American registry; those flying the British flag were twenty.

THIRTEEN ENGLISH VESSELS DESTROYED BY GERMAN CRUISER

KARLSRUHE WORKS HAVOC WITH FLEET OF BRITISH MERCHANTMEN IN ATLANTIC.

PART OF CREWS SAVED

News Received at London From Canary Islands Where German Steamer Has Landed Part of Rescued Crew.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

London, Oct. 23.—A dispatch from Tenerife, Canary Island, to the Daily Mail under date of Thursday reports that the German cruiser Karlsruhe has sunk thirteen British merchantmen in the Atlantic.

The news of the Karlsruhe's exploit, according to the Daily Mail's Tenerife correspondent, was brought to that port by the German steamer Cressel, which arrived there with the crew of the British steamer, Strathroy, Maple Branch, Highland Hope, Indrani, Rio Igassau, Fern, Nicotia, Maria De Larrinhe, Carman, Corish City, Pruth, Condor and Lynrowan, all of which were sunk by the Karlsruhe.

The Karlsruhe was accompanied into port by the German steamers Patagonia, Rio Negro and Assumption. The German steamer states that over 400 men of the crews of the British merchantmen were mostly taken to the South American coast, and their total tonnage is about 60,000.

Cruiser's Eventful Career.

The cruiser Karlsruhe, a ship of a ton less than 5,000 tons, has had in this war a career as eventful in the Atlantic as that of her smaller sister ship Emden.

The Karlsruhe first came into notice at the outbreak of the war, when she appeared in the vicinity of Sandy Hook, apparently in wait for British merchantmen leaving New York. For a few days the British ships hugged their coasts and then came news that the Karlsruhe had been driven away by the appearance of several British cruisers.

On August 9 the Karlsruhe appeared in the harbor of San Juan, Porto Rico, where she looted and then took to sea again. Soon after it was learned that the Karlsruhe had been in a sensational running fight at sea with the British cruisers Suffolk and Bristol.

It appears that the British cruisers came upon the Karlsruhe in the Gulf of Mexico, where she was looting British merchantmen. The Karlsruhe was then in a running fight with the Kion Prinz Wilhelm, a British cruiser, and was captured. The Karlsruhe also eluded her pursuers and an unconfirmed report had it that she damaged the Bristol in this fight.

Cooperatively New Ship.

Since then the Karlsruhe has appeared in several West Indian ports for coal after preying in various southern seas on British commerce. An official statement given out in Berlin on October 9 said that the Karlsruhe had sunk seven British steamers in the Atlantic.

The Karlsruhe is a comparatively new ship, having gone into commission in May, 1912. She is fast, having a speed of twenty-seven knots, which had enabled her thus far successfully to elude the persistent British pursuit. Her main armament consists of six 10.5 inch guns, and she carries a crew of 373 men.

STEAMER COLLIDES WITH FRENCH SHIP

Spanish Merchant Ship and French War Cruiser Run Together in Harbor—Cruiser Badly Damaged.

New York, Oct. 22.—Officers of the Spanish steamer Telesforo, which arrived here today from Buenos Aires, reports that the steamer was in collision with the French cruiser Marthe in the harbor of Castres, St. Lucia, on Oct. 4. The cruiser was badly damaged, according to the Telesforo's report, and was taken to Martinique for repairs.

The vessels collided as the Telesforo was entering the harbor, her officers said. They did not see the Desbarriere until the cruiser was a short distance ahead. Immediately the steamer's engines were reversed and she let drop her anchor. The momentum, however, was too great, and she crashed at high speed full into the warship. A boat was lowered from the cruiser and two of her officers boarded the steamer. They were very angry and the Telesforo's captain feared they would beat him. After a long and bitter wrangle, the officers went away and the Telesforo was made to give a bond to make good the cruiser's repairs before the steamer was permitted to continue on her trip to Boston and New York.

Even Food Prices Were Fixed.—No Exceptional Excitement as News of Situation Became Known in Berlin.

By J. Francis Connors.

It was Mr. Connors' good fortune to be in Berlin when the first news of the present war was actually made public. It is an interesting pen picture he draws of the situation, of the feeling of the people, of apparent preparedness of the German government to meet the emergency and the conditions that existed. This is the second of the series of articles he is writing for the Gazette.

After the assassination of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria and his consort, events followed thick and fast leading up to the critical moment which involved nearly all of Europe into one great furious struggle which probably will cause a definite change in the map of Europe, rendering our previous ones antedated and caused them to be placed into the archives of history.

In Berlin for a time there followed a short period of what seemed to be an unusual calm, and which in reality proved to be the calm before the storm. To the well informed Germans, it was rumored that at last the match was lighted and thrown into the powder magazine of the European state, which had just a few months previously successfully avoided this self-same difficulty that was now at hand.

Suddenly, after the ultimatum was sent to Serbia by Austria-Hungary, through their newspapers, received the unwelcome news that Russia was mobilizing its army on the border. Thereupon Germany, through its ambassador at Russia, asked the reason for this movement of soldiers and demanded an answer immediately. As no satisfactory reason was returned to Germany the government found itself obliged to proclaim a state of war against Russia, not only to protect her treaty obligations but also to defend herself.

As France had an alliance with Russia, Germany sent a message into France asking about her intentions. France answered that she would act according to her own interests. This was most decidedly unfavorable to Germany, as all there knew that France was an enemy to Germany since the Franco-Prussian war.

Before war was declared between Germany and France, the Berlin news bulletins reported that several French aeroplanes had crossed the border into Germany and had dropped a number of bombs along the railroad lines so as to cut off service to the border. Naturally, as both countries were very antagonistic to one another, this caused a feeling of deep indignation among the German people, as the rank and file couldn't ascribe the reason for it.

Immediately after a state of war was proclaimed between Germany and Russia, Germany went under martial law. Trains were soon few and far between, as the government used them for the transportation of soldiers. Suburban trains in and around Berlin which heretofore ran about ten minutes apart, now ran on the average of three or four a day. All long distance telephone and telegraph service was cut off. The people were only allowed to use the German language over each, if one continued speaking another language over the telephone after being told to "Deutsch sprechen bitte," the line was sure to be cut.

Money became at the same time what is known as "tight." Gold was immediately scarce, as everybody retained that on account of its face value. The banks, which were seriously affected, caused by the run on them by the masses, never closed, and always gave one the paper money (bills), which all were compelled to accept. Bills of large denominations were hard to cash for a time on account of the shortage of small change. Business also came to a standstill.

The manager of one shoe store on the biggest business street (Friedrichstrasse), corresponding to State street in Chicago, said that now they sold on an average of only four pairs of shoes a day. All the salaries of the clerks were cut in half, and they were thankful to receive that, and for a short time most business houses did not take in enough money to pay their electric light bills. Everybody began to practice strictest economy.

The government, through the newspapers, served warning that any business house found holding back on its provisions or wares to create a shortage, or raising the price above the now present government regulations, would be severely prosecuted for treason. After a few examples were strongly dealt with, prices in many things were made lower than ever. Oftentimes it wasn't necessary for the government to punish the offenders. Three delicatessen stores in different localities in Charlottenburg, run by a man named Edward Goldacker, were absolutely demolished by the mob because he raised his price just a fraction over the regulation price.

Personally, I am justified in saying that certain food prices in America were raised higher than in and around Berlin, Germany, for a time at the direct result of the war. I might add that this speaks well for the German system of government, especially during this critical crisis that country is now undergoing. There was a story circulated around the newspaper men in Berlin that shortly after the time England declared war against Germany, Mr. Frederick W. Wile, the writer, who is correspondent and representative of the London Daily Mail, the New York Times and the Chicago Tribune, who, by the way, recommended me for membership in the American Luncheon Club, received the cable from his paper in London that England declared war against Germany before the English ambassador, Sir Edward Goschen, heard it, and both were at a big meeting of English, German and American business men at the Hotel de Ville, upon the receipt of the message, read it.

The same day previous to this Mr. Wile, with other reporters, went around Berlin in an auto looking for available news, and during the course of the trip stopped at several telegraph bureaus en route and sent messages to his paper at London. The chauffeur suspected Mr. Wile of being an English spy, and after the meeting in the hotel, Mr. Wile was attacked by a mob and rather roughly handled until the police came and arrested him—also for his own protection. The American ambassador, Judge Girard, succeeded in arranging his release, and he departed on the special train with the British ambassador to Holland.

Shortly after the American ambassador published a note requesting all Americans to carry a small flag in a conspicuous place on their persons, so as not to be mistaken for English.

men and run the risk of overtaxing the patience of the people who already looked upon any English with hate. All Americans followed this advice, and no fellow citizen, so far as I know, was stopped other than to show his passport to an officer upon request, and after an apology for the annoyance, went his way.

TRY TO USE TRACKS FOR AN AUTOMOBILE

Party of Strangers' Mistake C. & N. W. Right-of-Way for Street and Meet Mishap.

A light automobile, loaded with five passengers, traveling at a fast pace on West Milwaukee street shortly before midnight last night, missed the crossing at the Five Points as the driver sought to turn west of Pleasant street and before it was stopped, jumped and bumped over the Chicago and Northwestern rails for a distance of about seventy-five feet from the crossing proper, and into the switch yards. Luckily no one was injured. The left rear wheel of the car was smashed. The hub, catching on a rail, checked the fast speed at which the machine was traveling, even after the tracks were encountered.

This morning the wreck had been pulled from the right-of-way and an early rising mechanic replaced the broken wheel. It is said an Evansville man will compensate for the damages according to the statement of the single member of the party who had remained to take care of the car. He refused to give his name and professed not to know the other members of the party, but said they went to Madison last night at midnight by train. This statement was later borne out by railroad men.

THREE BIG EASTERN GAMES SCHEDULED FOR YALE, HARVARD AND TIGERS.

EAST ADOPT PASSES

Purdue Meets Chicago In Most Important Western Struggle.—Wisconsin vs. Ohio at Columbus.

(By Striker.) Big matches mark Saturday's football games, with much to be learned from the elimination of championship candidates in both the east and west. In the east three important struggles are scheduled that will give the roots a touch of real and polished football now that the teams have gained their stride. Harvard meets Penn State, Yale contests with the sturdy Washington and Jefferson team and Princeton will attempt to revenge her last year's defeat by Dartmouth. The Cornell-Brown struggle promises to be both bitter and important contest.

As the season progresses there is no greater feature shown than the learning of the eastern teams on the offensive side of the game. The western elevens. The combinations that had made title winning western teams is being adopted by the eastern coaches and will probably be used with advantage on Saturday. Coach Frank Hunkley has placed Yale as a dangerous contender for eastern honors with new methods in running attack combining formations used in English rugby with a variation of the football that proved so successful in defeating the Notre Dame aggregation last Saturday. When the Yale halfbacks would negotiate passes in the backfield that rivaled basketball the western tackles were both bewildered and lost. No sooner was Notre Dame tackled through to dive at his man than the runner would toss the ball to a loose man who would repeat the pass, setting long gals.

The coaches have been equal to the situation. Coach Houghton at Harvard, and Harvard is also considering the passing game. Whether Houghton will use it for the Crimson offense or is preparing an attack to meet Yale with more than a passing question. With the outcome of the Notre Dame game before him it is certain Houghton will not rest in peace until he has drilled the Harvard team until they are prepared to meet the passing style of play. Coach Houghton has always been opposed to the open game, preferring line plunging and football of the old school which he has so successfully used in his years.

Yale, having disposed of Notre Dame without loss to her stars, will meet W. and J. noted for its prowess on the gridiron, having lost to Harvard by a long neck. This game will afford the Blue another chance to try their new game, and the W. and J. team with a week's warning will probably have a defense that will trouble the Yale team.

Harvard has easy prey in Penn State which affords the Crimson an opportunity to put their crimples into play again. As Mahan, Pennock, and Loefer have rejoined the squad. This fact should spread fear into the camps of the other eastern teams, who realize the strength of the Harvard team when the veterans take the field.

Cornell will meet Brown on the Yale grounds in New York, and Brown will have to show real football to escape the sting of defeat as the Ithaca team are playing a superior game. In cases the eastern elevens will meet on Saturday.

Interest in the west centers on a few conference games which will be the elimination of the losers for the "big nine" honors. Purdue will meet Chicago at the Madison, and the game is expected to be the closest game in the west. The Boilermakers since their defeat in the hands of the Badgers have been crippled by injury, and there is no doubt but what the Maroons will be returned the winner. Maroons will have even introduced the "movie" to the Chicago squad and during the last week has pounded a bunch of Stage football into the Maroons, who with Illinois look like the winners of the conference title.

One of the big games will be the struggle between Minnesota and Iowa. Iowa's showing against Chicago, which defeated 7 to 0 by a long run by Russell, the eleven of the football will have to move their ears to "lick" the rivals. The Iowa team plays better ball at their home gridiron and it would be doubtful if they held the Minnesota eleven to a "practice" game.

Illinois will have a "practice" game with Northwestern at Evanston, and Coach Zuppke's fast team should walk away from the weak Purple team. Wisconsin will meet a four worthy opponent in Ohio state and Badger should win if they show the same spirit in this game as evidenced against Purdue. Coach Juneau has developed a team that will make a strong bid for conference honors with their green team. Trouble is now being experienced at Madison with line material, there being no reserve players of any class.

The Michigan "Aggies" after holding the Ohio's Michigan squad to a 3 to 0 game, will contest with Northwestern. The Aggies should win handsily. Notre Dame with the Army game in mind will tackle South Dakota, who gave Minnesota a good rub. Michigan will have its final test for the year in the meeting Syracuse at the latter's gridiron.

In the little five colleges Beloit, Wisconsin Northwestern at Beloit, which the state line college should win handily. Coach Evans appears to have a great backfield but is weakly weak in the forward wall, having but a few linemen that are worthy of attention. Lake Forest and Monmouth will afford the best game in the college conference.

Sport Snap Shots

Penn's hope of beating Michigan in the annual gridiron battle at Ann Arbor on the first Saturday in November, rests upon the shoulders of a youth from Toledo, O., Ted Merrill by name. With the elimination of Penn had left but one man who could acceptably fill the vacant and important post. He was Merrill. The Penn coaches gave Merrill his tryout game last Saturday, and at the close of the game the red and blue meteors realized that they had the best and liveliest quarterback since Kid Keath had graced the place.

Merrill had been a catcher for the Michigan men. He ran around the Middle's pair of good ends, one of them, Captain Overesch, star of last year's West Point-Annapolis game. He is fast as a streak of lightning, a good dodger, and so small and agile that he is almost an impossibility to so far as tackling is concerned. He particularly shines as a runner, punts and an open field runner. Against the Navy he handled fifteen points, some of them difficult, and never made a mistake. Twice he saved the day also by flying tackles when the Midshipmen had a clear field to the goal line. It was in the use of judgment that Merrill showed himself. He got all out of the team that its offense would permit. He had the machine going at top speed all through, and did not make an error of judgment.

Competent observers of ring affairs are now predicting that Young Ahearn gives promise of becoming a scotch. His manager, Ahearn, who left here for Europe more than a year ago with Dan McKerrick, his manager, was considered a very clever boxer, who was lacking in aggressiveness. Today he is supposed to be a knockout in punching ability and aggressiveness and with the cleverness and cunning of McCoy. He started his real advancement as a lightweight in France and defeated the lightweight and welter weight champions of that country. As these two Frenchmen had victories over several Yankee fighters, Ahearn began to attract attention. He was trained and guided by Joe Jeannette, who told McKerrick that in Ahearn he had a remarkable fighter. Pat O'Keefe, champion of England, and Adrien Hogan, champion of France were matched for the European middleweight title, and Hogan won. Being an Englishman, Ahearn was matched for the title with Hogan, and Ahearn stopped Hogan in 112 times. It was at this point that McCoy, who was a great admirer of Ahearn, said to McKerrick, "You have a world's champion in that boy. He is the greatest of his weight I have ever seen. Jack Johnson told me he could defeat Ahearn could defeat the world."

An amusing story is being told on Mike Dorizas, the gigantic Greek football player of the University of Pennsylvania, who is the strongest man in the college ranks, but a greenhorn at football. The Greek never saw a football or a football match until he tried for the Penn team, and of course has been learning very slowly. After considerable preliminary practice early in the year in the rudiments, he was suddenly thrust into a practice scrimmage, the first of the year. Only a few rudimentary signals had been given him and he had to fend for himself. The quarterback reeled off some numbers, 8-12-3-2-8-3-5. Just as the center was about to pass the ball, Dorizas called out, "I have it." Before the startled coaches could ask the reason for the interruption, Dorizas called out, "I have it." He had made a "catch" of the quarterback's signal together as a problem.

President William F. Baker of the Philadelphia National displayed the judgment of a Solomon in selecting the 1915 manager for the Phillies. Pat Moran was notified Tuesday that he was the club's choice. Baker in this way kept peace in the family. Two warring factions were lacking players for the job. One faction wanted Hans Lobert, the other Sherwood Magee. Lobert, who has his congratulations to Moran, Magee has said nothing. Moran was with the Boston and Chicago National league clubs before joining the Phillies. He was rated as a fair catcher.

Baseball men expected Jim Gaffney and George Stallings would have all sorts of trouble signing up the Braves for 1915, but reports from Boston would indicate such is not the case. Conolly, Rudolph and Whaling are reported to be the only Braves of prominence who haven't come to terms for one or more seasons.

According to a recent issue of the Harvard Alumni Bulletin, one would be led to believe that Percy Haughton had nothing but a gang of left-overs from the European war to work with. The "old graps" paper gives a list of cripples that would make a Hurry Up Yost feel like a money king if it only sounded reasonable.

Referee William S. Langford will officiate at the Harvard and Michigan football game at Cambridge on Saturday, October 31. He will also have charge of the Harvard vs. Princeton contest and the annual Penn. vs. Cornell game.

Recently at the fortieth anniversary of the founding of Cornell university every member of its first victorious crew of 1875 was present and looked fit to take his place in the boat and row against any crew with an age which might be gathered together.

HIGH ELEVEN SHOW

REVERSAL OF FORM FOR EDGERTON GAME

Regulars Plow Through Senior Squad for Long Gains in Drill Yesterday.—Await Whistle Tomorrow.

True form, surpassing any other practice of the year, was credited to the Janesville high eleven at the conclusion of their drill yesterday afternoon, when for almost an hour they were pitted against the senior squad with satisfactory results. The line showed improvement, while the backs played the game in speaking of long gains. The correct score was not kept track of. The seniors, on the other hand, were helpless before the onslaught of the regulars.

The scrimmage was preceded by stirring talks by Coach Curtis to the line and backfield of the first string men. While the line were receiving the last instructions preliminary to the Edgerton game tomorrow, the backs journeyed to another corner of the field and went through their new formations, which resemble the "open" play. New tricks and mass formations were practiced by the backs during the scrimmage also. A short time after the line and the work of each individual man, "Mucks" Schenck, the big 181 pound guard, was the fore-runner yesterday. Curtis paid more attention to him, and with time he was tearing holes through the senior line almost at will. Much is expected of him in Saturday's game to make holes and to break up Edgerton's line. The backs, too, are heavy high school players in the state. Mooney, the agile little end, was back in the lineup, after nursing an injured leg. Vinyes taking Richard's place at the end, and Edgerton will start the game tomorrow. Richards will not play again this year owing to parental objection.

McCulloch will start at left guard, while Jones and Ran will hold down the right tackle. Either Dudley or Slawson will play at center. The backfield, composed of Stewart, G. B. Cronin, L. H. Dearborn, R. H. and Moore, L. B., will remain the same. Dearborn and Cronin are men of rare ability to the high school team. Both are speed artists, and run low with their heads down. They are hard to stop once they get a flying good start. Dearborn is the best dodger while Cronin hits harder. More, at fullback, is gradually mastering the plunging style. Tomorrow's battle will be his second attempt to play at fullback. Captain Stewart at quarterback is the best player in the general. Followers of the team look for him to be the supreme judge tomorrow in selecting the right plays for the right moments, and there is every reason to believe he will do so. No tricks will be tried, unless all other plays fail to cover the necessary ten yards.

A light signal practice this afternoon closed the work for the Edgerton game. Two forty five minute time the game will be called, and the Driving Park Association grounds is the place. The team ask for support, especially in the first periods, which quarters has spurs and defense for them in the two games thus far played.

COLORADO IN THROES OF PROHIBITION FIGHT

Denver, Colo., Oct. 23.—Whether Colorado will be wet or dry is the question almost overshadowing all others at the election to be held Nov. 3 throughout Colorado. One of the bitterest reasons for the state's history is being made by the anti-liquor forces. The foes of liquor are supremely confident that they will reverse the result of the last liquor election in Colorado several years ago when the "wets" won by vote of nearly 2 to 1. One of the principal arguments used by the "wets" is that voting the state "dry" would paralyze the tourist business everywhere in Colorado as travelers would refuse to visit a state in which they could not get a drink. This contention is denied by the "drys," who declare that Colorado Springs, one of the principal centers for tourist travel in Colorado, is already "dry" territory. They declare the absence of saloons has not had any effect on tourist travel. Rev. "Billy" Sunday, baseball player-evangelist, took a hand in the campaign during his recent revival by preaching a series of powerful sermons on the liquor evil and urging his hearers to vote for prohibition.

ALL-AMERICAN NINE STIRS UP DISPUTES

BASEBALL EXPERTS DO NOT AGREE UPON STARS OF NATIONAL PASTIME.

SURE PLACE FOR COBB

Tigers' Outfielder Appears to be a Universal Favorite.—Burns is Rival of Speaker.

Selections for the All-American ball team have been made and are now being presented for the consideration of the fans. The line-ups that have been chosen by the most prominent experts and domestics will kindle many disputes. There are those who will feel that they might have done much better, but most will be content to abide by the decisions of the most capable critics.

George Burns, the Giant outfielder, has been named by some as more deserving of a berth on the all-star lineup than Joe Jackson, the Cleveland wizard. Cobb and Speaker have been assigned their places in the outfield with few demurs. But the contentions that Burns is a better all-around player than Jackson will start controversies in many quarters.

New York writers are almost unanimous in selecting Burns, but this is not so surprising. It is claimed in Gotham that George is easily one of the greatest players in the game today. He performed brilliantly for the Giants throughout the season and his zest with the bat was a source of strength to them at a time when the rest of the team was languishing sadly. Even so it is doubtful whether Burns can display a better record than Jackson. The Cleveland boy ended the season with a batting average of .34, against .305 for Burns. Burns enjoyed the best of health all season while Jackson was hampered at many times with a game leg. This alone would give Burns the edge on Jackson, as the New York boy cannot be said to be any faster in the field or on the bases than Jackson, nor is he more gifted in bringing in runs.

The second base selection will stir a number of critics, but the majority of critics hand the honors to Johnny Evers. The world's series and Evers' performance therein account for this. Previous to the big show great interest was had in looking forward to the playing of Evers and Collins in competition, many being eager to see which would surpass the other. A review of the work of both seems to entitle Johnny to the crown.

Jake Daubert at first and Maranville at short.

HUGGIN'S SELECTION.

Left Field—Burns, Giants.
Center Field—Speaker, Red Sox.
Right Field—Cobb, Tigers.
First Base—Daubert, Brooklyn.
Second Base—Collins, Athletics.
Shortstop—Maranville, Braves.
Third Base—Baker, Athletics.
Catchers—Snyder, Cardinals; Schang, Athletics; Archer, Athletics.
Pitchers—Alexander, Phillies; Rudolph, Braves; Tesreau, Giants; Leonard, Red Sox; Johnson, Senators.

At short are two selections that will be the approval of all. And Frank Baker is given third base without a dissenting murmur. Cobb, Speaker and Jackson or Burns complete the outfield. Hank Gowdy and Jimmie Archer are the leading catching selections.

An examination of the big league pitchers shows that there is more high class twirling in the game today than there has been for some few seasons. The past season brought to light a number of young men very highly endowed with craft in the box. The famous trio of the Braves showed this clearly. The favorites of them all for places on the All-American team are James and Rudolph of Boston, Walter Johnson of the Senators, Alexander of the Phillies and Plank of the Athletics.

Sell your house or any other piece of real estate you may have through the want ad column—the cost is but a trifle.

COST OF SHIPS.

Ancient and modern warfare on the sea clearly demonstrate the results of what might be termed civilization.
The hollow war canoes of the savage tribes typify the war craft of our ancestors of early days while the immense superdreadnaughts, costing millions, show the advanced stages that war has brought this country to.
There has been talk for years of disarmament of nations to prevent war —such a war as now shocks the civilized world—but it has been vain talk. As long as one powerful country built more warships, manufactured more powerful guns, its inventors produced more destructive explosives, disarmament was not to be thought of. However the Wall Street Journal sees a ray of hope emanating from the present struggle.
Advocates of a competition in armament, which the United States is invited to join, fail to see that there must come a day when the structure topples over, of its own weight, as, indeed, it has done in Europe. They talk in such large sums that they cease to comprehend what the large sums mean.

It probably cost about $400,000 to build and equip Nelson's battleship, the Victory. At Trafalgar he had twenty-seven ships of the line, as they were called—three deckers—the 18th equivalent of the modern super-dreadnaught. His entire fleet, including the frigates, did not cost as much as one super-dreadnaught, built in England, where they build ships cheaper than we do.

It was possible to build an old line of battle ship, even as late as 1840, when they mounted 320 guns, and were wearing their collops, at an expenditure of less than $600,000, with one hundred men working on the hull, and a score or so on the rigging. The total labor was about $80,000, which is about one per cent of the labor on a modern battleship.

Building a superdreadnaught means the labor of 2,500 men for two years on the hull alone, and this is about two-sevenths of the total labor withdrawn from productive work. The hull of the modern battleship is only a fraction of the total cost. The engines will swallow up something like $2,000,000, and the gun mountings as much more. This does not, moreover, include the guns themselves, the cost of which will not be less than $750,- 000, and we all know the price of shells. If we read the war news.

The kind of armor that is put into this terrific engine of destruction costs considerably more than $500 a ton. And the more of these monsters you build, the more you have to build.
Does any sane person believe that when this war is over, and the nations of Europe have bled themselves white that it will not be easier to institute competitive disarmament in place of the expansion of armed forces which is now advocated? Is it possible that Europe has failed to teach us "how often the means to do ill deeds, make ill deeds done?"
A city should be proud of having fewer policemen than its equally populated rival. If we learn to regard the soldier and the battleship as the largest commerce in proportion to its size, and the greatest culture in proportion to the hearts of its people, which has the smallest police force.

THOSE AMENDMENTS.

Once more the attention of the voter is called to the ten amendments that the equal democrats managed to have favored in the last campaign document published by the states of the union of the tax payers.
The executive committee of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' League sends out the following words of warning that would do well to be read. The amendments are socialistic, and urged by the socialists, who, under the present system, can never succeed in passing socialistic laws; but with their vote in Milwaukee, and with a member of the legislature, they may,
under these proposed amendments,
compel the people of this state to vote on socialistic amendments, at any and every state election, and unless the people of the state pay more attention than usual to constitutional amendments, are quite likely, at any time, to succeed in engrafting socialistic amendments on our constitution, that will have more force and effect than socialistic laws they could not succeed in passing.

Remember the socialistic vote is fully fifteen per cent of the vote of this state—quite as large as the vote on many constitutional amendments that are passed. It is of the utmost importance that it is in favor of good, economic, representative government be alive to the importance of the situation, and the necessity of rejecting these amendments.

About the same subject the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin says:

All the proposed amendments to the constitution of Wisconsin which are to be voted upon at the approaching election are bad, and the whole ten should be defeated. To say which is the most vicious and dangerous of the farago would be an impossible task. Several of them are not only wrong in what they ostensibly aim at, but contain latent possibilities of mischief no doubt deliberately intended by the framers—the species of trick on the voters known as jokers.

Attention is called to the following result of the examination of one of the amendments by an open-minded citizen who has made a discovery like that of a charge of dynamite in a cooked stick. The extract is from the Port Washington Star:

If there is any one thing which has aroused the people of this state it is the frightful increase in the cost of operating the state government, yet one of these proposed amendments seeks to fix the present extravagance on the people.

The so-called initiative and referendum amendment is found in this clause: "No law making any appropriation for maintaining or aiding any public institution not exceeding the previous appropriation for the same purpose shall be subject to rejection or repeal under this section." What does this mean? Simply this: That if the appropriation made by any future act of the legislature for any state institution or purpose does not exceed the last one made for the same object, the people have nothing to say. So if an exorbitant sum of the people's money was set aside for some experiment by any state institution, a similar amount can be appropriated for the same purpose and the people cannot by the referendum say nay.

What is worse, it is proposed by the adoption of this amendment to trick the voters into giving an endorsement and sanction of the extravagant and unwise waste of the people's money by the last and preceding legislatures by having them in effect say that no appropriation not in excess of the last shall be subject to qualification by the electors.
There has been complaint that the ballot in Wisconsin is too cumberssome—that it gives the voter more things to think about and pass upon than he can attend to at one time.
What the ballot would be under the system of initiative and referendum may be left to the imagination of the average voter. If the advocates of these amendments had for their purpose the destruction of representative government they could not have adopted a course more cleverly calculated to bring about that calamity.
In the opinion of the writer, good citizens who have carefully studied these preposterous amendments their defect is the most important duty devolving upon voters at the approaching election.

The time for making your selection of candidates for state offices, including legislative, is becoming shorter and shorter. Wisconsin is now at the turning of the roadway. For years it has been the experimental ground of the most sought political capital out of new schemes for luring the voters, and now these voters, looking over the tax receipts, are doing their own thinking and if they vote as they think, they will elect Philipp and the entire republican ticket when election day arrives.

Newspapers throughout the state who are publishing the stuff sent out by the Blaine campaign committee detracting from Mr. Philipp's character should take warning from the fact that a prominent eastern publication paid him $13,000 damages for publication of the same charges which were proven false when published some years ago, by the courts of New York state.

It is funny to witness the gyrations of the men who a few years ago were preaching party regularly when their faction was in control of affairs and now are the first to raise the banner of revolt, talk of their rights as citizens and go about preaching rebellion, heresy and schism simply because they lost out in the primary.

The only persons who apparently object to this kind of weather are the coal dealers, the merchants with stocks of winter goods and the persons who predicted a cold early autumn.

Rock county is going to have a taste of the spell binder during the present campaign after all. It has been a pretty quiet campaign thus far and a little ginger instilled into it will not go amiss.

MISS MARY ANDERSON IS BRIDE OF WILLIAM KETTLE

Ceremony Solemnized Last Evening at Home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A.
Hammarlund.

The wedding of Miss Mary Anderson of this city and William Kettle of the town of Plymouth was solemnized at eight o'clock last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hammarlund, 702 Logan street. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom. Rev.
T. C. Thorson read the service.

Miss Jessie Anderson of Hancock, Wisconsin, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Clarence Herkey of the town of Plymouth attended the groom. After the wedding journey Mr.
and Mrs. Kettle will be at home on his farm in the town of Plymouth.

Owing to the seriousness of the case,
the appendix having been ruptured,
Dr. H. A. Sinton, a Milwaukee spec-

ONE HILL OF POTATOES YIELDS SEVEN POUNDS

Eight potatoes weighing seven pounds, and the same with more than 100 small ones, were raised by J. J. Miller, of the east section of the center Grove farm. Mr. Miller has noted the fact that the potatoes which he has raised in the past few years have been unusually large and heavy.

Plants from the school for the blind

nance of shooting fidele the blinde.
Chief Champion declared that the offenses must stop or court prosecution will result. A heavy fine or a jail sentence or both is allowed by the city ordinance as punishment.

Keep Your Lungs Strong

This advice is doubly important with the knowledge that every three minutes some one in the United States succumbs to consumption, and many refuse to realize they are afflicted until it is too late.

It is after colds or sickness, from overwork, confining duties or when general weakness exists that tubercular germs thrive because the resistive powers of the body are weakened.

Only with fresh air, sunshine and abundant rich blood can one hope to arrest their progress, and the concentrated fats in Scott's Emulsion furnish fuel for rich blood, and its rare nourishment helps strengthen the lungs while it builds up the forces.

If you work indoors, tire easily, feel languid or run-down Scott's Emulsion is the most strengthening food-medicine known and is free from alcohol or stupefying drugs. Avoid substitutes.

Discharged Employee Caught Stealing
Apples From Hanley Bros. Store

Yesterday.
John Jensen was arraigned in the municipal court yesterday afternoon on the state's charges of breaking into and carrying away merchandise from the store of Hanley Bros. at 13 South Jackson street during the day time. Jensen pleaded guilty to the offense and waived his right to an examination. Judge H. L. Maxfield refused to sentence the man until Saturday morning, wishing to investigate the man's family and his past life before imposing punishment.

Yesterday at noon Jensen walked into the Hanley Bros. store and started filling a sack with apples. He is a former employee of the firm, having been discharged over a year ago.
As Jensen went into the store a girl employee of the store of Hanley Bros. at street telephoned to E. J. Murphy, manager, who immediately called the police office. Patrolman Fred Albright hastened to the store, a discharge of block, and caught Jensen
just as he was coming out of the door with the sack partially filled with apples under his arm.

Jensen was brought before the court as soon as a warrant was made out and information filed by District Attorney Dunwiddie. It was reported to the police by members of the Hanley firm that fruit has been missed from the store and even from the freight cars at numerous times and the blame was placed on Jensen.

Jensen is awaiting his sentence at the county jail.

"Can you keep a secret?" is a very

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—No, It Isn't Easy to Tell Dancing Now-a-Days—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Last Shot

By FREDERICK PALMER

(Copyright, 1914, by Charles Scribner's Sons)

But far from flinching, Marta seemed to be greeting the blow, as if she admitted his right to strike. She was without any sign of triumph and with every sign of relief. Lying was at an end. She could be truthful.

"Do you recall what I said in the reception-room at the hotel?" she asked. The question sent a flash into a hidden chamber of his mind. Now the only thing he could remember of that interview was the one remark which hitherto he had never included in his recollection of it.

"You said I could not win." He drew out the words painfully.

"When you said that you brought on this war to gratify your ambition, I chose to be one of the weapons of war; I fought for civilization, for my home, with the only means I had against the wickedness of a victory of conquest—the precedent of it in this age—a victory which should glorify such trickery as you practiced on your people."

"I should like to shoot you dead!" cried Bellini.

"And you let me make love to you!" Westerling said in a dazed, groping monotone to Marta.

Such a wreck was he of his former self that she found it amazing that she could not pity him. Yet she might have pitied him had he plunged into the fight; had he tried to rally one of the broken regiments; had he been able to forget himself.

"Rather, you made love to yourself through me," she answered, not harshly, not even emphatically, but merely as a statement of passionless fact. "If you dared to endure what you ordered others to endure for the sake of your ambition; if—"

She was interrupted by a sharp zip in the air. Westerling dodged and looked about wildly.

"What is that?" he asked. "What?" Five or six zips followed like a charge of wasps flying at a speed that made them invisible. Marta felt a brush of air past her cheek and Westerling went chalky white. It was the first time he had been under fire. But these bullets were only straws. No more came.

"Come, general, let us be going!" urged the aide, touching his chief on the arm.

"Yes, yes!" said Westerling hurriedly.

Francis, who had picked up the coat that had fallen from Westerling's shoulders with his start at the buzzing, held it while his master thrust his hands through the sleeves.

"And this is wiser," said the aide, unfastening the detachable insignia of rank from the shoulders of the great coat. "It's wiser, too, that we walk."

"Walk? But my car!" exclaimed Westerling penitently.

"I'm afraid that the car could not get through the press in the town," was the reply. "Walking is safer."

The absence in him of that quality which is the soldier's real glory, the sense of a machine who had been crushed by his machine, his very lack of stoicism or courage—all this suddenly appealed to Marta's quick sympathies. They had once drunk tea together.

"Oh, it was not personal! I did not think of myself as a person or of you as one—only of principles and of thousands of others—to end the killing—to save our country to its people! Oh, I'm sorry and, personally, I'm horrible—horrible!" she called after him in a broken, quivering gust of words which he heard confusedly in tragic mockery.

He made no answer; he did not even look around. Head bowed and hardly seeing the path, he permitted the aide to choose the way, which lay across the boundary of the Galland estate.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Retreat. Marta remained where Westerling had left her, rooted to the ground by the monstrous spell of the developing panorama of seemingly limitless movement. With each passing minute there must be a hundred acts of heroism which, if isolated in the glare of a day's news, would make the public thrill. At the outset of the war she had seen the Browns, as part of a pre-conceived plan, in cohesive rear-guard resistance, with every detail of personal bravery a utilized factor of organized purpose. Now she saw defense, incoherence and fragmentary, each part acting for itself, all deeds of personal bravery lost in a swirl of disorganization. That was the pity of it, the helplessness of engineers and of levers when the machine was broken; the warning of it to those who undertake war lightly.

The Browns' rifle flashes kept on steadily weaving their way down the slopes, their reserves pressing close on the heels of the skirmishers in greedy swarms. A heavy column of Brown infantry was swinging in toward the myriad-legged, writhing gray caterpillar on the pass road and many field-batteries were trotting along a parallel road. Their plan developed suddenly when a swath of gun-fire was laid across the pass road at the mouth of the defile, as much as to say: "Here we make a gate of death!" At the same time the head of the Brown infantry column flashed its bayonets over the crest of a hill toward the point where the shells were bursting. These men minded not the desperate, scattered rifle-fire into their ranks. Before their eyes was the prize of a panic that grew with their approach. Kinks were out of legs stiffened by long watches. The hot breath of pursuit was in their nostrils, the fever of victory in their blood.

In the defile, the impulse of one Gray straggler, who shook a handkerchief aloft in fatalistic submission to the inevitable, became the impulse of all. Soon a thousand white signals of surrender were blossoming. As the firing abruptly ceased, Marta heard the faint roar of the mighty huzzas of the hunters over the size of their bag.

Some doctors of different regiments thrown together in the havoc of remnants of many organizations, with the help of hospital-corps men, were trying to extricate the wounded from among the dead. They heard a woman's voice and saw a woman's face. They did not wonder at her presence, for there was nothing left in the world for them to wonder at. Had an imp from hell or an angel from heaven appeared, or a shower of diamonds fallen from the sky, they would not have been surprised. Their duty was clear; there was work of their kind to do, endless work. Units of the broken machine, in the instinct of their calling, they struggled with the duty nearest them. They begged her to go back to the house; this was no place for her.

But Marta did not want safety. Danger was sweet; it was exaltation. She was helping, actually helping; that was enough. She envied the peaceful dead—they had no nightmares—as she aided the doctors in separating the bodies that were still breathing from those that were not; and she steeled herself against every ghastly sight save one, that of a man lying with his legs pinned under a wagon body. His jaw had been shot away. Slowly he was bleeding to death, but he did not realize it. He realized nothing in his delirium except the nature of his wound. He was dipping his finger in the cavity and, dab by dab, writing "Kill me!" on the wagon body. It sent reeling waves of red before her eyes. Then a shell burst near her and a doctor cried out:

"She's hit!"

But Marta did not hear him. She heard only the dreadful crack of the splintering shrapnel jacket. She had a sense of falling, and that was all. The next that she knew she was in a long chair on the veranda and the vague shadows bending over her gradually identified themselves as her mother and Minna.

"I remember when you were telling of the last war that you didn't swoon at the sight of the wounded, mother," Marta whispered.

"But I was not wounded," replied Mrs. Galland.

Marta ceased to be only a consciousness swimming in a haze. With the return of her faculties, she noticed that both her mother and Minna were looking significantly at her forehead; so she looked at it, too. It was bandaged.

"A cut from a shrapnel fragment," said a doctor. "Not deep," he added.

"Do I get an iron cross?" she asked, smiling faintly. It was rather pleasant to be alive.

"All the crosses—iron and bronze and silver and gold!" he replied.

All firing except occasional scattered shots had now ceased in the immediate vicinity, though in the distance could be heard the snarl of the firmer resistance that the Grays were making at some other point. The Galland house, for the time being, was isolated—in possession of neither side.

"Isn't there something else I can do to help with the wounded?" Marta asked. She longed for action in order to escape her thoughts.

"You've had a terrible shock—when you are stronger," said the doctor.

"When you have had something to eat and drink," observed the practical Minna authoritatively.

Marta would not have the food brought to her. She insisted that she was strong enough to accompany Minna to the tower. While Minna urged mouthfuls down Marta's dry throat as she sat outside the door of the sitting-room with her mother a number of weary dust-streaked faces, with feverish energy in their eyes, peered over the hedge that bounded the garden on the side toward the pass. These scout skirmishers of Stransky's men of the 33d Regiment of the Browns made beckoning gestures as to a crowd, before they sprang over the hedge and ran swiftly, watchfully, toward the linden stumps, closely followed by their comrades. Soon the whole garden was overrun by the lean, businesslike fellows, their glances all ferret-like to the front.

"Look, Minna!" exclaimed Marta. "The giant who carried the old man in pickaback the first night of the war!"

Minna was flushing, but the flush dissipated, and she drew up her chin when Stransky, looking around, recognized her with a merry, confident wave of his hand.

"See, he's a captain and he wears an iron cross!" said Marta as Stransky hastened toward them.

"He acts like it!" assented Minna grudgingly.

Eager, levithian, his cap doffed with a sweeping gesture as he made a low bow, Stransky was the very spirit of retributive victory returning to claim

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

the ground that he had lost.

"Well, this is like getting home again!" he cried.

"So I see!" said Minna equivocally. Stransky drew his eyes together, sighting them on the bridge of his nose thoughtfully at this dubious reception.

"I came back for the chance to kiss a good woman's hand," he observed with a profound awkwardness and looking at Minna's hand. "Your hand!" he added, the cast in his eyes straightening as he looked directly at her appealingly.

She extended her finger-tips and he pressed his lips to them.

"I kept seeing the way you looked when you belted me one in the face,"

he went on, "and knocked any anarchist out of me that was left after the shell burst. I kept seeing your face in my last glimpse when the Grays made me run for it from your kitchen door before I had half a chance for the oration crying for voice. You were in my dreams! You were in battle with me!"

"This sounds like a disordered mind," observed Minna. "I've heard men talk that way before."

"Oh, I have talked that way to other women myself!" said Stransky.

"Yes," said Minna bitterly. His candor was rather unexpected.

"I have talked to others in passing on the high road," he continued. "But never after a woman had struck me in the face. That blow sank deep—deep as what Lanstron said when I revolted on the march. I say it to you with this—he touched the cross—on my breast. And I'm not going to give you up. It's a big world. There's room in it for a place for you after the war is over and I'm going to make the place. Good-by till I'm back—back to stay! Good-by, little daughter!" he added with a wave of his hand to Clara as he turned to go. "Maybe we shall have our own automobile some day. It's no stranger than what's been happening to me since the war began."

"If you don't marry him, Minna, I'll—I'll—" Mrs. Galland could not find words for the fearful thing that she would do.

"Marry him! I have only met him three times for about three minutes each time!" protested Minna. She was as rosy as a girl and in her confusion she busied herself retying the ribbon on Clara's Eileen's hair. "He called you little daughter!" she said softly to the child as she withdrew into the tower.

JOHN, I WANT YOU TO GO AND CLEAN THE CELLAR STAIRS AT ONCE!!

When Sir Thomas Lipton started in business he was very poor, and making every sacrifice to enlarge his little shop. His only assistant was a youth of some fifteen years, faithful and honest. One Saturday morning he was heard complaining, and with justice, that his clothes were so shabby that he was ashamed to go to church the following morning.

Says Sir Thomas in speaking of the incident: "I felt sorry for the lad, and after thinking the matter over, I took a sovereign from my carefully hoarded savings and bought the boy a comfortable, good suit of blue cloth. He was so overwhelmingly grateful that I felt amply repaid for my sacrifice. The following morning, however, he did not make his appearance at the accustomed hour, and later in the day, as his mother was passing the building, I inquired the reason of her

FINE IMPROVEMENTS FOR ASSEMBLY HALL

New Decorations and Extensive Alterations Add Much to Attractiveness of Ball Room.

Hayes Brothers have expended a considerable sum for the redecoration and alteration of Assembly hall, which has been transformed into a most attractive ball room with every convenience for the accommodation of party guests.

The color scheme of the new decorations is extremely attractive. The new steel ceiling being painted a beautiful cream shade, with the walls a light chocolate brown and the wainscoting a darker brown. The old-fashioned inside blinds have been removed from the windows, the casings of which, as well as the rest of the woodwork, are painted the same color as the ceiling. The decorations are carried out with the same color scheme in the ladies' parlor, spectators' gallery, smoking room and check room, all of which have been altered in important details.

At the south end of the hall the musicians' rostrum has been erected, and at the north end the spectators' gallery has been rebuilt and rearranged with a stairway leading directly from the dance floor.

A big feature of the improvements is the lighting facilities having been installed. Instead of the numerous small lights which studded the ceiling, the hall is lighted by five large electric lamps which fit in nicely with the general artistic arrangement. Smaller lamps are provided for the musicians' rostrum, the gallery and the entrance. The wiring is of the most approved type, being enclosed in steel tubes.

The walls will no longer be marred by the distracting marks of nails and hooks inserted indiscriminately, but large hooks are provided at intervals along the corridors and to which all decorations may be attached.

"CASCARETS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS, SICK, WHEN SHAKY, CONSTIPATED—DIME A BOX

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged, constipated bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a still barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver active, bowels clean, stomach sweet, head clear, and make you feel bully for months. Don't forget the children.

$9,000,000 WAR TAX WISCONSIN'S SHARE

State Treasurer Henry Johnson is Authority for Statement Regarding New Revenue Measure.

On top of the business depression and the army of unemployed, caused by the Underwood tariff law, Wisconsin people will pay more than $9,000,000 of war tax the first year this democratic deficit tax is in effect, was the statement made by Treasurer Henry Johnson. He is authority for the burden the war tax will lay upon the Wisconsin taxpayers.

"I wish others, have gone over the democratic war tax very carefully, and Wisconsin citizens will pay over $9,000,000 under this additional burden the first year it is in effect," said Mr. Johnson.

Large Amount of Taxes. "The amount will be at least this much and I think it will be found to be larger after the tax has been collected."

"If a state tax levy of $7,665,000, nearly all of which will be for national purposes, is excessive, as democratic claim, what have they to say to Wisconsin people with reference to their own little burden of nearly $10,000,000 which they are imposing upon the people of the state, and in time of peace?"

Mr. Johnson confirms the favorable reports of conditions in the state that have been pouring into republican state central committee headquarters for ten days.

"There is no doubt of the election of the entire state republican ticket by a decisive margin," said Mr. Johnson.

"I have been in very close touch with the organizations in a number of counties during the last few days and everywhere the business depression, due to democratic rule, is waking up republicans and driving others to the republican tickets."

Hard Times Exist. "Hard times exist and many people are out of work. These actual conditions are not to be misrepresented by democratic spellbinders, for the people know what the conditions are because they suffer from them."

"The republican ticket is the one which holds out hope of old time prosperity, and the only ticket that does this, and that's why voters are rallying to the ticket."

"I have never felt so certain of a complete republican victory as I feel concerning the victory the party will score all over the state on Nov. 3."

Appetite Follows Good Digestion

Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

The most effective remedy to correct this condition is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This is a natural, pleasant-tasting remedy, gentle yet positive in action, and quickly relieves indigestion, constipation, sick headache, belching, etc. Drug stores sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, and in thousands of homes it is the indispensable family remedy. For a free trial bottle write Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 451 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

EPICURIAN TASTES AWAIT APPEARANCE OF TOM AND JERRY

Popular "Fall Guys" Will be Demanded Drink This Season Since War Hurts Fancy Supplies.

Janesville connoisseurs of things fancy to the thirst are looking forward with a great deal of pleasure to a visit within the next few days from those two popular "fall guys," Tom and Jerry.

Although the name seems to denote a team of fire or police patrol horses, they are in no wise connected with either department. Although a too lengthy association with them might lead to a closer relation with Harry Maxfield, the police magistrate, Tom and Jerry is perhaps the most popular fall and winter holiday drink, local retail liquor men say, and there is an ever increasing demand for it every succeeding season.

The saloon men declare that, while there is no set time of year for the Tom and Jerry to make its appearance, it may be expected soon after Jack Frost has come for the first time. The drink reaches the crest of its popularity on New Year's Day, while on Thanksgiving day, the concoction is to the drink connoisseur, what the turkey is to the epicure, and to the collegian, difficult to procure in procuring several foreign liquors in making the drink, the saloon men say, means that the price may incidentally be a little higher this season than the former.

For a time the European war threatened to curtail the supply of winter drinks and liquids which enter into their mixture. In some quarters liquor was hoarded and the liquor men found it difficult to get their early orders filled. A greater share of the imports of the fine wines and liquors were bottled and the liquor men found it difficult to get their early orders filled. CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

"CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS" CAN'T HARM TENDER STOMACH OR BOWELS.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, and your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 25-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

The Best Index

of what the coffee trade think of the harmfulness of the coffee-drug, caffeine, is shown in their efforts to get rid of it—to get a coffee that doesn't contain caffeine!

When they do succeed in getting rid of some of the caffeine drug-content, the result is a weak, "clover-tea" decoction that few appreciate.

But after all their efforts to rid coffee of part of its caffeine, how about the other coffee-drug, "tannin"—about 2-2.5 grains to every cup of coffee?

Tannin is the drug used to tan hides with. Do you know what it does to your stomach? Probably not. Here is what good authorities say about it:—

"Tannic acid in coffee interferes with digestion."

"The caffeine and theine in coffee and tea are cerebral stimulants, and the tannic acid is an astringent, affecting especially the muscular fibers of the intestinal walls."

"Tannic acid is universally condemned by all authorities as a hindrance to digestion and health."

Why keep on running the risk of serious interference with health. Why not quit a table beverage that bears in its train a lot of trouble like nervousness, headache, heart, stomach bowel disturbance, insomnia etc.

Thousands, suffering from these ills, find it easy to quit coffee when they have at hand the delicious, nourishing beverage—

War Letter Shows Censorship Maintained In War Districts

Vienna, Oct. 22.—A news-letter from Vienna tells some remarkable instances of the censorship in the Austrian capital and pays a compliment to the consideration shown to foreigners who are still in Austria.

The warnings from the police against adverse comment on the military operations is to be taken seriously, says the letter, "is evident from the fact that a man who had remarked casually in a Vienna cafe that the Austrian soldiers were cowardly, was promptly arrested and sentenced to two years imprisonment with hard labor, with a fast day once a week, and a day's confinement in a dark cell once a month. Another man who had been overheard saying that the Serbians would be victorious received exactly the same sentence." Newspapers from America have been held back at the post-office for more than three weeks, according to the letter, and telegraphic communication has been difficult. But the people have practically given up trying to dispatch messages. For correspondence with the soldiers at the front special postcards and envelopes are provided and each man may be addressed by a code number, but his whereabouts are not changed, and the news exchanged is subject to a rigid censorship. It is said that only a few commonplace matters are written. "It must be admitted," writes the Vienna informant, "that the Vienna people, and indeed the Austrians generally, have treated the foreigners here, including even those of hostile countries, with a great deal of consideration. There have been no demonstrations against embassies or legations or individuals. In a few instances Englishmen have been the victims of some unpleasant incidents in the streets, but these cases were rare and of slight importance. It is the rule to avoid speaking either English or French, and in that event one may feel safe from annoyance. "The local official news agency has taken it upon itself to remind the people that there are over 99,000,000 Americans whose mother tongue is English, and that in their midst are living many thousands of Austrians enjoying the hospitality of the freest country in the world. It therefore became the Viennese to extend the greatest courtesy to Americans here. "There are, of course, a number of young Englishmen and Frenchmen under arrest to make it certain they will not fight against Austria-Hungary, but they are being well treated, with the exception of the fact that they have to sleep on the straw strewn floor of the detention camps. They are allowed to correspond with their friends within the monarchy. "The French women—governesses mainly—have given the police more trouble than the men. They frequent the cafes and often talk loudly in abuse of the Austrian authorities."

AT THE APOLLO.

Burgundy Girls draw crowds. Charles Irving and his Burgundy Girls presented their tabloid musical comedy last night to crowded houses. Six girls and two men put on a breezy little thirty minute show in which a ballet chorus pleased everyone with their songs and dancing. Frequent changes of costumes added to the charm. Dreyer and Dreyer earned the distinction of being the best dancing act on vaudeville. They have a act that has won them much praise on the best circuits of the country. Their dancing is the work of artists and they dress the part. No cheap comedy is injected to mar the harmony. Mack O'Neill a Scottish comedian gave a very clever entertainment and did fair to rival Harry Lander. His is an act that takes. The entire bill will continue until Sunday night.

AT THE MYERS.

Quite the most popular popular stage will be the engagement of the Jack Bossey Stock Co., which will be inaugurated at the Myers theatre on Sunday matinee and night. "The Cost of Living" is the play. The Jack Bossey Stock Company has made for itself such an enviable reputation that to elaborate on its merits, especially in this country, where it is so well and favorably known, is like carrying coals to Newcastle. One beauty about this organization is that it has been together for so many seasons that the members work in such harmony that it reminds one of some perfect machine, so excellently do the talents of one fit into the other. Their performances are always a delight, moving along smoothly and serenely, without any of the hesitation and stalling bound to occur in companies which are changing their members constantly. "The Cost of Living" will be the play for Sunday at both matinee and night. To be followed by "The Scramble" for Monday when ladies will be admitted free under the usual conditions. As an extra added feature the three big vaudeville acts that start Friday at the Myers will be held over for both Sunday shows along with the regular moving pictures making a big double feature show.

MYERS VAUDEVILLE.

Opening tonight for three days Myers Theatre presents as the feature attraction, "The 4 Gynors American Knockout Comedies." This quartette is a clever combination of acrobats and comedians. Fred and Mary Waddell, comedy singers, dancers and club jugglers, intersperse their work with a flowing line of jokes and witticisms. La Marr and Lawrence are also clever comedians with a singing and dancing act.

TREY O' HEARTS.

Tonight the ninth episode of the Trey O' Hearts will be shown with many thrilling and exciting scenes. As the Crow Phies is the title of this installment and a wonderful scene is shown wherein a aeroplane plays a important part. The Chicago Herald Weekly will also be shown tonight.

VOCAL ARTISTS COMING.

The Stevens Concert Company announces a concert next Tuesday evening at Library Hall in which the following artist will participate. They come direct from Chicago where they will appear at the Fine Arts Theatre on Sunday. Neida Hewitt Stevens, Soprano; Celene Loveland, Pianist; and Ridgely Hudson, Tenor, are artists with country wide reputations.

GERTRUDE FITCHIE WINS HEARTS OF MYERS AUDIENCE

"He Fell in Love With His Wife" is Well Received. Gertrude Fitchie, in the trying part of Alida Armstrong, in the dramatization of E. P. Roe's magnificent novel, "He Fell in Love With His Wife," won the hearts and admiration of an audience that filled the Myers last night. Miss Fitchie has the power, the indescribable magnetic personality that reaches out beyond the footlights and enlists the sympathies of her audience. The audience in no time is played upon for tears, and only once or twice for hearty laughings, although the pathos attaching to the role of Jane, the poorhouse child played by little Dixie Dow, is the very quint essence of art. However, no fine raiment or winning manners from the characters of "He Fell in Love With His Wife" are used to win favor, but by rugged strength and tender appeal do they succeed in swaying the sympathy of the audience at all times. It tells of real men and real women, of warring passion, tumultuous and fierce at times in which black villainy is brought into sharpest contrast with the white flame of virtue—approaching the melodramatic at times and attaining histrionic heights, the play unfolds with a naturalness and continuity that becomes intensely, almost painfully realistic.

Jesus And Judas.
The Story.

In the Doge's Place in Venice a black curtain covers the portrait of the traitorous dog who sold his city to the enemy. It is not a pleasing task to lift the somber veil from the face of the betrayer of Jesus, but the study of Judas has an abiding value as a psychological interest and value seems a paradox that Jesus should have chosen such a person for an apostle. But Judas' defects at start were not greater than those of some of the other disciples. Peter, for example, some of his talents—that for business, for instance—were of high value to Jesus. There was no reason why Judas should not have cured his defects and developed to the highest degree the excellencies of his character. But instead of curbing his vices he gave them rein. He let his avarice grow until it flitted from the small role of the apostles' treasury. The incident of the "anointing" at Simon's feast is a snare of his progress. He depreciated the spending of money for the refreshment of his Master on the eve of his agony. He had become not merely a miser, but a liar as well. It was not for the poor that he wanted Mary's ointment, but because he would have it appreciated the proceeds. Jesus' rebuke of Judas was all the more effective in that it was not addressed to him at all. Jesus only commended Mary's act, but his rebuke was aimed at Judas. Another evil passion, namely avarice, Judas was incensed that his character and motives should be shown up in this way to his fellow apostles. Judas' anger against the apostles on the night of the betrayal to a murder. It was in the white heat of his rage that he carried out a plan that he had been coming for a while. And he betrays his Master to his enemies for money. Judas was far from happy at the last supper, but he could not absent himself without creating suspicion and thus defeating his plan. The disciples could not understand Jesus' allusions, but Judas saw in his words the circle narrowing down until all were excluded but himself, and his villainy revealed to himself and the Master alike. Jesus does his best to save his recent disciple. He gives him seat of honor, washes his feet, serves him his portion with his own hand, and in a last appeal in which he says, "If you are determined about your deed, do it quickly!" But the sullen stream of Judas' treachery has already grown so wide that the "philosophy, age, and religion" strove vainly to stem the headlong current. The end of it all makes the most odious scene in human history. Judas, "one of the twelve," leading that armed troop to his Master's resting-place and showing him the way to his enemies and crying, "All hail!" when he meant "All harm!" Jesus' words are not of caustic irony, as they have been more than have justified. But rather of pitying appeal. "Comrade! Is this the purpose of your coming?" And again, "Betrayest thou me with a kiss?" Judas became his own executioner. His penitence was not sincere, but only a sorry, not real compunction of conscience. He was mortified at the denouncement. He was charmed at the consequences, for he was at heart a proud and ambitious man. His was the ignominious torture of a haughty man who discovers that he has been "used" by others for their base ends. His repentance was purely judicial. He felt the first draw of the halter. "Point as it is, hell is defiled by his foul presence." Upon the black azule of Judas' evil character and dastardly deed the story of Jesus' holy nature stands in sharp contrast. In this dread crisis and shameful ordeal Jesus bore himself with a sublime dignity and courage which extorts the admiration of all. He advanced toward his enemies and promptly acknowledged his identity. He sheltered his disciples with self-oblivious affection and asked that they be allowed to retire. He offset for Peter the disastrous consequences of his rash deed on account of which he perhaps had to suffer humiliation of being bound. "And so they led him away."

The Teacher's Lantern.

Judas was the only apostle who was not a Galilean. He had the Judan disposition to look down on the Galileans. Members of the "Lion tribe" felt themselves as belonging to a superior order as the custodians of the capital of the Hebrew Commonwealth. Judas was a man of sacred memories. Judas may have drunk national hopes with his mother's milk. He may have cherished personal ambitions without being consciously insincere or hypocritical. At the start he might even have developed into a self-oblivious hero and patriot. But he began to covet office, power, and pelf for himself. Judas was such a determined, aggressive, resourceful character that he could not be a neutral tint under any circumstances. He must be either superlatively good, as Jesus hoped he would be, or superlatively bad as, alas! he proved in the somber sequel. The making of him treasurer of the apostolic college was in itself a test of character. It was for him to resist the cupidity which would lead him to pilfer from that meager store. The amount in hand was never so large as to be an overwhelming temptation. He might easily have nipped it in the bud. He could not, and that was the beginning of his descent to hell. How swift! A few short months sufficed. How different the record might have been! In the element of selfishness which he had chosen the better part. Had he done so, Judas' name, instead of being forever linked with Satan's, might now be graven deep with that of the holy apostles in the foundation of the New Jerusalem. He falls down at hell who falls from a pulpit. From such a height Judas fell. The minute particularity of an account reveals the narrator as an eyewitness. The exact composition of the band which Judas conducted is given; their accoutrements described; the very words of Jesus' challenge to the traitor and his response; the exact chain which Peter used; the exact location and extent of the wound inflicted; the name of the victim.

The unworshipful character and bearing of Jesus is conspicuous. When men sought to enshrine him he evaded them when they were bent upon crucifying him he advanced to meet them.

Analysis And Key.
Study of Judas: Ethical and psychological advantages favored. Choice of Apostle Paradoxical, Apparently. Defects not Greater than Others; Son of Excellence; Latter Developed. Result Different; Other Course Chosen. Incident of "Anointing" a Gauge. Anger a Rebuke Additional Notice. His First Aid to Money; His Repentance Judicial; Feels the Halter Draw.

The Christian And The Ballot.

"He belied the city and went!" It is the Christian citizen's business to know the things which belong to his country's peace. It is only by his means that disaster can be averted. The ballot can be made as sure a weapon of defense as the musket. Its use is a duty not to use the one as the other. Clear vision and steady nerve are required for the effective use of both.

Review of Thursday's Market.
Chicago, Oct. 23.—More than 62,000 cattle received in four days is the largest week's receipts of the year. A total of 17,000 western rangers numbered among the arrivals yesterday, the largest of the season. Native steers and range cattle are generally 10@25c lower than last week's closing quotations.

There was another reaction of 9c in average price of hogs to highest point of the week. The price range is the narrowest in a month and a week ago got still more contracted. Yesterday's top was only 2 1/2c above Wednesday's summit, while poorer kinds moved up 10@20c.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $7.34, against $7.25 Wednesday, $7.51 a week ago, $8.63 a month ago, $7.88 a year ago, $8.57 two years ago and $7.23 three years ago.
